150 children at cultural project

CLOSE onto 150 Mitchells Plain pupils last week attended a cultural programme at the Inn on the Plain which was organised by the Town Centre's branch of the Department of Health's family planning service.

Mr Lionel Davis of the Community Arts Project in Woodstock was invited to assist in the project and he entertained the youngsters with art works, music and puppet making.

One of the children who attended the cultural project, Gabiba Plaatjies, a pupil at Cascade Primary school, said that like herself, all of the children benefited from the project.

"This is a good thing and I will definitely be attending the next one. I really learnt a lot," she said.

Mr Davis of the Community Arts Project said afterwards that their aim was to educate children culturally in a non-commercial way.

"Too many young people waste too much of their time in nightclubs and other non-creative activities.

He said that Mitchells Plain needed more cultural facilities for children.
